FACILITATING TRADE IN THE DIGITAL ECONOMY

How to facilitate paperless interaction between business and government?

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

ICC Facilitating Trade in the Digital Economy 8-9 April 2014, Geneva

An interactive discussion to improve the paperless process

This conference will provide an opportunity for business and public administration practitioners to engage in a constructive dialogue on the regulatory and practical issues that arise when paper-based trade and administrative processes are replaced with ICT-facilitated interactions.

Sessions will be structured on real experience in electronic supply chain management and law enforcement, and not on abstract law or policy. Plenaries will focus on how to bringing government and business together. Workshop topics include: e-customs, e-tax, e-public procurement initiatives. Keynote address by Alexandre Fasel, Permanent Representative of Switzerland to the United Nations Office.

The conference is a unique opportunity for business practitioners who are facing significant challenges to integrate country-specific e-government and associated administrative requirements into their supply chain automation strategies to interact with the government official responsible for these requirements.

Examples include regulation and mandatory administrative interfaces for tax, customs, public procurement and other areas from BRICS, APEC, EU and the Americas. Requirements typically include:

- Regulated or government operated pre-authorization systems
- Compulsory agreements between market players
- Localization and related requirements
- Authentication mechanisms, ID Management and security
- How current practices influence business global data integration strategies worldwide
