ICC G20 ADVISORY GROUP

A business platform to shape the G20 agenda

International Chamber of Commerce
The world business organization

Why ICC?

Present in over 120 countries through its global network, ICC is the world business organization, speaking with authority on behalf of enterprises from all sectors in every part of the world.

Through its top-level consultative status with the United Nations, ICC has been the highly-regarded voice of business at the UN and its specialized agencies since 1946.

By virtue of its long history of authoritative involvement in international policy-making and its global reach – including its role in the creation of the Bretton Woods institutions at the end of the second world war – ICC is exceptionally positioned to represent world business.

Today's complex challenges are global and require effective international collaboration.

The G20 has been designated as the "premier forum" for international economic cooperation. This emerging high-level group is a natural fit for ICC's unique policy stewardship – helping government leaders make complex decisions affecting global welfare.

Our policy advocacy focuses on issues that are part of the G20 agenda and business priorities. ICC will draw upon its long experience in building a broad consensus within the world business community on complicated policy issues, while steering clear of lowest common denominator positions. We will do this through a global and inclusive consultative process that will seek input from companies and business organizations of all sizes and in all regions of the world.

ICC G20 Advisory Group Chairman Marcus Wallenberg addresses the closing plenary at the Seoul G20 Business Summit