

Commission on Corporate Responsibility and Anti-corruption

Mandate

The ICC Commission on Corporate Responsibility and Anti-corruption is a leading global private sector body that develops rules of conduct and best practices for fighting corruption and provides world business views on key corporate responsibility and anti-corruption issues.

ICC has taken the lead among business organizations in denouncing corruption and developing rules to combat it. The ICC Rules and Recommendations to Combat Extortion and Bribery constitute the cornerstone of ICC's anti-corruption work, serving both as a tool for self-regulation by business and as a roadmap for governments in their efforts to fight extortion and bribery. In addition to these flagship ICC Rules, the commission has developed a suite of crucial anti-corruption tools for companies to use proactively as part of their integrity programmes.

The Commission on Corporate Responsibility and Anti-corruption also provides business with practical instruments to contribute to their on CSR performance and shapes the development of key standards for corporate responsibility.

The Commission has over 180 members from 40 countries.

ICC's voluntary market-based approaches for fighting corruption and for high standards of responsible business conduct contribute to leveling the playing field for all participants in a global economy.

Current Priorities

■ BUSINESS AND HUMAN RIGHTS:

Work with the UN Special Representative to the Secretary-General in the development of the UN framework and principles on business and human rights; participate in direct consultations with the Special Representative over the course of his mandate; and ensure that business views are represented in the final report of the Special Representative and in any further actions taken by the UN Human Rights Council.

■ OECD GUIDELINES FOR MULTINATIONAL ENTERPRISES:

Gather world business views and convey to BIAAC on the revision of the OECD Guidelines.

■ ISO 26000:

Monitor developments regarding International Standards Organization (ISO) ISO 26000 guidance standard on social responsibility.

■ BUSINESS CASE FOR CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY:

Outline an ICC perspective on the “business case” for corporate responsibility, based on company experience and existing research.

■ RESIST:

Promote a key anti-corruption training tool for businesses, known as “RESIST” that guides company employees on how to react when faced with bribe solicitation.

■ ICC TASK FORCE TO REVISE ICC RULES FOR COMBATING EXTORTION AND BRIBERY:

This ICC group is currently developing recommendations for revisions to the ICC rules on anticorruption, to take into account the new provisions of the UN Convention against Corruption (UNCAC).

■ UN CONVENTION AGAINST CORRUPTION:

This ICC Task Force is conveying business views calling for a strong the UN Convention against Corruption (UNCAC) review process. UN CAC is world’s only universal anti-corruption instrument, that holds the promise of curbing corruption and of creating a level playing field for all participants in the global economy.

■ GUIDELINES ON GIFTS AND HOSPITALITY:

In seeking to foster sound commercial relationships, there may be some limited space for legitimate incidental business gifts and hospitality. Such gifts and hospitality can, however, be wrongly interpreted by the recipient or by third parties. That is why this ICC Working Group is developing draft guidelines for best business practices in regards to Gifts and Hospitality.

Recent accomplishments

■ RESIST:

In June 2010, ICC released the expanded edition of Resisting Extortion and Solicitation in International Transactions (RESIST). RESIST is a practical toolkit to help companies raise employee awareness on the risk of solicitation. RESIST is made up of twenty-two real-life scenarios that illustrate how to prevent and/or respond to an inappropriate demand and that propose practical ethical solutions. Fifteen new scenarios now focus specifically on situations that companies and organizations can face during the implementation phase of a project, including advice on what to do when a bribe is demanded for the release of perishable goods in customs to ways of dealing with a tax inspector requesting a kickback against a tax discharge. This second installment builds on the initial 2009 edition, which set out seven solicitation scenarios occurring in the procurement stage of a project. ICC developed RESIST along with World Economic Forum Partnering Against Corruption Initiative (PACI), the UN Global Compact and Transparency International. RESIST has been hailed by companies, governments and leaders in the anti-corruption field as a crucial, practical anti-bribery training toolkit developed by business for business.

■ BUSINESS AND HUMAN RIGHTS:

ICC contributed to an international symposium on business and human rights as input to the Special Representative to the UN Secretary-General on business and human rights; represented global business in consultations with the Special Representative; and promoted the business view that private sector development and human rights are mutually supportive.

■ ICC GUIDELINES ON USE OF AGENTS, INTERMEDIARIES AND OTHER THIRD PARTIES:

ICC finalized and released in 2010 its ICC Guidelines on use of Agents, Intermediaries and Third Parties, which provide companies with essential advice on good commercial practice on how to select, remunerate and manage third parties, so as to obtain the best possible result without harm to the enterprise's reputation.
